COVID-19 Prevention Network
The National Institutes of Health is working with a network of partners to prevent and treat COVID-19. There are a number of clinical trials actively enrolling participants. While these trials are not part of All of Us, you are welcome to learn more about and join these studies at coronaviruspreventionnetwork.org.

The Community Engagement Alliance (CEAL)
Community leaders can play a vital role in connecting their communities with important, accurate information about public health and clinical research. Find resources that can help you talk with your communities about COVID-19, the vaccines being developed, and the importance of being included in research studies. Visit covid19community.nih.gov for more information.
